About Joseph

Joe Coyle has more than 25 years of experience in the housing and development industry. He has been with Michaels since 2011, when he was selected by the organization to utilize their expertise and solid financial resources to create University Student Living, which is dedicated to the diverse needs of student housing and its related services.

Prior to joining The Michaels Organization, Joe's career included extensive national leadership positions, which included serving as President of College Park Communities, the student housing division of GMH Communities Trust, where Joe also held the position of Executive Vice President. Under the auspices of his innovative vision and management skills, College Park Communities owned more than 60 student housing properties across the country and managed almost 40,000 beds. Throughout his career in student housing, Joe has been committed to working closely with colleges and universities to develop student living solutions that address financial, academic and cultural goals that stand the test of time.

Joe received a B.S. degree from Villanova University. He is a former Certified Public Accountant. Memberships/Associations: Joe is a member of the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO), the National Multi Housing Council (NMHC), the National Association of Educational Procurement (NAEP), and the National Student Housing Council (NSHC).

Joe served as President and Principal of Point Pleasant Pediatrics, an operator of assisted living and pediatric care facilities headquartered in Radnor, PA. He is also the former Audit Committee Chair for the Board of Directors of Hyperion Bank.
