Director's Corner

I get asked on a regular basis about my thoughts on Brexit. The main point about Brexit is that it's a complete mess that shows no sign of being resolved any time soon. The longer I live in America, the less interested I am in news from across the pond and the less British I feel. I know I've still got a funny accent though.

But it got me thinking about what makes Americans feel American, apart from being born here/living here. What are our country's values and how are we perceived around the world? The 27th is Memorial Day, a day that we honor the men and women of our armed forces who lost their lives fighting for ours. That day makes me feel very proud to be American.
