WARRENTON, Va. (April 15, 2020) – With widespread reports of the COVID-19 sweeping the nation, one local senior living community is shifting its sights to support those who are responding to the pandemic. White Springs Senior Living, a brand-new senior living company slated to open in the summer of 2020, has partnered with Ellie's Place, a local Warrenton restaurant, to provide and deliver meals for essential personnel around Warrenton.

"When I saw the Facebook post made by Zan, the owner of Ellie's Place, I knew right away that I wanted to help them," said Cindy Murphy, Director of Sales & Marketing at White Springs Senior Living. "I love supporting other local businesses, so I quickly reached out to him, and we started coming up with a plan right away."

White Springs and Ellie's Place came up with a campaign for Warrenton residents and organizations to sponsor box lunches for first responders and healthcare workers. Each box lunch costs $7.50, and proceeds will help support Ellie's Place.

The Warrenton community responded immediately through promotions on social media and local outlets. So far, White Springs and Ellie's Place have delivered meals to the Warrenton Police Department, Heartland Hospice, Brookside Rehab and Nursing Center, Warrenton Volunteer Fire Company and Dr. Maybach's Office. Yesterday, White Springs and Ellie's Place delivered meals for the 260 employees at Fauquier Hospital.

"At Fauquier Health, we are so thankful for the overwhelming support from the community we serve," said Sarah Cabbage, Hospital Spokeswomen. "Words cannot express enough how much it means that our community cares and supports us right back."

To date, White Springs and Ellie's Place have delivered 441 meals. Meal purchases are still available at <https://ellies-place-101224.square.site/>.

White Springs Senior Living is scheduled to open its doors this summer. For more information on White Springs, visit www.whitespringsseniorliving.com.
