Celebrating 61 Years of Marriage

Back in 1957, while attending class at Michigan State, Duane met Betty. He knew she was the one, and they later married in 1959.

They raised two boys, who later had families of their own, giving Duane and Betty six beautiful grandchildren and six beautiful great-grandchildren. Years later, their boys moved to Fishers, Indiana, where Duane and Betty joined them. We are so lucky to have Duane and Betty as part of our family here at Northridge.

Happy Anniversary to you both!

Hog Wild for Harleys

For more than a century, Harley-Davidson motorcycles have been synonymous with adventure and cruising on the open road.

In 1901, the wheels began turning for a young Milwaukee man named William S. Harley, who had the idea for a motorized bicycle. He drew a blueprint of a small engine to fit on a bike, and over the next two years, he and childhood friend Arthur Davidson worked on the design. Davidson's two brothers soon joined the team.

They built the first motorcycles in a backyard shed. In 1905, their first dealership opened in Chicago. As business grew, the company hired more employees and built a factory in Milwaukee. Police departments began ordering Harleys for their officers, and the U.S. military bought thousands of bikes during both world wars, where troops used them to deliver messages between units.

After World War II, legions of leisure riders took to the roads, cementing the popular brand as an American icon. The company's bar and shield logo in orange, black and white is one of the most recognizable emblems in the world.

Harley-Davidson motorcycles are sometimes called "hogs," a nickname that began in the 1920s, when one of the company's winning racing teams carried their mascot, a pig, on their victory laps.

Lure 'Em In

Open up an angler's tackle box, and there's likely to be a few fishing lures inside. An alternative to live bait, lures come in a variety of styles.

Crankbait: Also called cranks or plugs, these popular lures are made of plastic or wood and look like bait such as small fish or frogs. An attached piece, or lip, on the lure controls how it moves in the water. Cranks usually have multiple hooks.

Jigs: A hook with a weighted metal head that allows it to sink, this type of lure is made for jigging, a style of fishing where the rod is lifted and lowered back down repeatedly, creating a dancing movement to attract fish. To make it more appealing, the lure's hook can be adorned with feathers, a fake worm, or live bait.

Spinnerbait: These lures have small oval blades that spin like a propeller when pulled through the water. Usually sporting a fringed "skirt" made of strands of rubber or animal hair, a spinner's horizontal movements are irresistible to fish such as bass, perch and pike.

Spoons: One of the oldest lures used was a common utensil—a spoon with its handle removed. Modern spoons are simply curved metal lures with a hook. The curved shape makes the lure wobble side to side, resembling injured bait to hungry fish.

Flies: To make these lures used for fly fishing, anglers tie fur, feathers or thread around a fishhook so that it resembles an insect or crustacean. Because of the skill involved, tying flies is considered an art.

‘Jaws’ Turns 45

Considered to be the first summer blockbuster, the thriller “Jaws” opened in theaters on June 20th, 1975. Dive into these fin-tastic facts about the film.

- “Jaws” was based on the novel of the same name by Peter Benchley, who also co-wrote the screenplay. He originally titled the book “Silence in the Deep.”
- Three mechanical sharks were built to portray the great white beast that terrorizes a seaside town.
- To add suspense, the shark isn’t seen until nearly an hour and a half into the film. In total, it only has four minutes of screen time.
- The memorable line “You’re going to need a bigger boat” was ad-libbed by actor Roy Scheider, who played the town police chief, Martin Brody.
- The fishing boat used to track the shark is named the Orca. In real life, orcas are the only natural predators of great white sharks.
- John Williams composed the famously foreboding two-note “Jaws” theme, winning the Academy Award for best original score.
- The first movie to make over $100 million at the box office, “Jaws” was the highest-grossing film of all time until 1977’s “Star Wars.”
