Cognitive Corner: The FUNNY side of Covid 19

This has been a difficult time for all of us. Literally EVERYONE in this country is being affected by the Covid 19 outbreak. One way to keep your sanity during this time is to remember to have a sense of humor. While this is a TERRIBLE thing that is happening to a lot of people, in reality, the majority of citizens in this country will not contract the virus. With that in mind, I found several funny cartoons and items from the internet about this pandemic. I hope at least one of them brings a smile to your face...

Scenes from Last Month...

The Easter bunny showed up in a BIG way for everyone!

A nice "thank you" from a family member to our staff!

Taking all precautions to keep our residents safe!

Activity Avenue...by Carla Moon

It's a CRAZY world we're living in right now! I am SO ready for life to get back to "normal"...whatever that new "normal" will be! We want you all to know that we are SO GRATEFUL for your patience during this unfortunate time! With the limitations put on us in providing activities for you, that makes it even more difficult! We KNOW it's hard not being able to see your families or to even get out of the building. Now that the weather is getting warmer, I will see to it that a lot of you get outside more often and I will do as many bus rides as I can.

As of the writing of this newsletter, we have no idea what the future holds as far as getting back to that new "normal". We must adhere to the rules and regulations put forth by Senior Housing...as difficult as it can be sometimes. Hang in there...we've already gone through the toughest part. I firmly believe we are on the downhill side of this whole thing!
