Community Celebrates Beloved UPS Driver with a 'Thank You' Surprise

What does a hero look like? If you were to ask this to the residents of Chesterfield County, Virginia, they would probably tell you about Anthony Gaskin – a local UPS driver who has been changing lives in the wake of COVID-19.

Since the beginning of the pandemic, residents of the Hallsley neighborhood have been receiving more deliveries than ever. Whether their packages have contained essential supplies or notes from loved ones, they always reach their destination because of Anthony.

"Through COVID, Anthony has continued working, delivering packages at our doors, record numbers of them, over 180 times to date," neighbor Patty Friedman wrote in an email.

"Anthony always delivers our packages with a wave and a smile," another neighbor wrote. "Sometimes he is the only outside face we see during the day. We appreciate his hard work and dedication during the pandemic, which delivered food, supplies, and even holiday gifts to a high-risk family."

To show their appreciation for the UPS driver, Patty and other neighbors came together on Tuesday, December 15th to line the street with bikes, cars, and grateful members of the community. When Anthony arrived to make his usual deliveries, he was greeted with ringing bells, honking horns, and roaring cheers. As devoted to his job as he was moved by the gesture, Anthony gave the crowd an emotional thank you before seeing to his deliveries.

"Anthony always smiles, waves, and goes above and beyond to deliver packages with care," a neighbor added. "He makes you feel like a friend when you see him. He brightens our day, whenever he drops off a package, which is frequently at our house! He stands out from ALL other delivery drivers and we love him! Cheers to Anthony!"
