

Making the Most of Your Community Tour

One of the most important steps you can do before making the decision to move is to attend an in-person tour of our community. But what should you do once you get here?

Touring a community is a big step in the senior living journey. And if you are at this point, then take time to congratulate yourself on this progress.

Chances are that you've never toured a community before, but you know the value of finding the right community for you or a family member. The more prepared you are for the process, the better you'll be at selecting that perfect community.
