Memories of My Mother

It always irked my single mother that her grocery store didn't carry eggs in packages of six—just by the dozen. Then one day, her wish came true. She walked into the grocery and found fresh eggs in cartons of six. "I was so excited," she told us later, "that I bought two!" —Thomas Hassmann

A local lumberyard was having an open house, and my mother really wanted to go. Dad, though, had no interest. After badgering him with no luck, she finally said, "If you don't go, I'll be the only woman there." Dad shrugged. "If I go, you'll still be the only woman there." —Gerald E. Bronnenberg

What I remember most about my dad's jokes is my mother's reaction. While everyone else was howling at one of his punch lines, my mom would always respond, "Bernard, no one thinks you're funny." —Nedra Cawley
